Root Zone Database

The Root Zone Database represents the delegation details of top-level domains, including gTLDs such as ".COM", and country-code TLDs such as ".UK". As the manager of the DNS root zone, IANA is responsible for coordinating these delegations in accordance with its policies and procedures.

Much of this data is also available via the WHOIS protocol at whois.iana.org.

HEY!!!

I was literally just thinking of writing you to see if you were going to be in the neighborhood!

I will be here and looking forward to meeting you - dinner and drinks are on me!!

As an update, I'm filling out insurance reports because the boat I bought (Iroquois 30 catamaran) and brought down here in may was hit last week and stripped of "stuff" Luckily your charts were onshore, but my GPS, a Honda generator, and stereo were lost... see you then..

call on VHF16 or cell phone 245-9693 or look for me at Coconuts.....

Patt,

How are you? How's your boat?

When will you be on Dominica? I'll be around Dominica around Dec 7th and again around the 18th. I have to be back on Antigua at the end of December.

Hope you're doing well,

Steve

Argument By Mr. Buikema

1 THE COURT: Wait, that's a different theory.

2 MR. BUIKEMA: You asked me specifically about the
3 confusing --

4 THE COURT: We're going to go to each one of your 5 theories because I'm trying to figure out why you're
6 asserting these theories because it doesn't seem to me
7 your Lanham Act has any merit at all.

8 MR. BUIKEMA: The Lanham Act claim is relative not
9 to the use of the confusingly similar web domain name,
10 I misunderstood, Your Honor, apologies.

11 The Lanham Act claim is relative to plaintiff's
12 use, republication of our actual logo, trade name.

13 THE COURT: Where is that set forth here?

14 MR. BUIKEMA: This is set forth in the verified
15 complaint.

16 THE COURT: No, no, I've got your motion. I'm 17 reading your motion. Your motion tells me why you're 18 entitled to relief. Now, you're coming up with 19 something I didn't read in the motion at all.

20 MR. BUIKEMA: That is contained, I believe, at 21 page six, Your Honor -- excuse me, top of page seven.
22 Our motion reads, "Defendant's use of the similar 23 domain name, including copies, reproduction and/or 24 counterfeits of the AUA logo on the site itself has 25 been and continues to be done with the intent to cause

1 services are the domain name itself and the information
2 disclosed thereby.

3 THE COURT: He's not trying to sell the name
4 itself, is he?

5 MR. BUIKEMA: I don't know.

6 THE COURT: Wait. It's your motion, if you don't 7 know, then you can't say that he is.

8 MR. BUIKEMA: That's correct, Your Honor, there's 9 been no discovery in this case.

10 And as you know, I'm held to a standard of 11 potential success on the merits. Substantial
12 likelihood of success on the merits, not absolute
13 success on the merits. There's been no discovery on 14 that issue.

15 I will submit to you, Your Honor, that it's my 16 belief and understanding, I was not counsel in the 17 State Court case. But my belief and understanding is 18 that Mr. Woodward has attempted to extract profit from,
19 let's say, exploited aspects of that web domain.

20 THE COURT: What's the basis of that
21 understanding?

22 MR. BUIKEMA: From my review of the record, I am
23 appellate counsel in that case and was so appointed
24 after the disposition by the State Court Judge.

25 THE COURT: All right. Let's go to your next

13

1 claim which is, "Willful violation of Family
2 Educational Rights and Privacy Act"?

3 MR. BUIKEMA: Correct.

4 THE COURT: I'm reading from your brief, "The
5 Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974
6 prohibits the federal funding of educational 7 institutions that have a policy of practice of 8 releasing education records without authorized
9 persons." What's that got to do with this case?

10 MR. BUIKEMA: In my view, Your Honor, it's a
11 wrongful act predicate to a tortious interference
12 claim. And perhaps that's not made as clear as it
13 should be by our pleadings but that's how I regard this 14 claim.

15 FERPA prohibits disclosures of students'
16 information by the University itself. And has, as 17 consequence, the termination of federal funding, which 18 my client does receive and some of the students receive
19 benefits under that provision.

20 It's my view that Mr. Woodward's conduct in 21 disclosing student information grades, which he admits
22 to doing and, in fact, has muddled this record by 23 attaching yet more of that information, creates
24 standing to my client -- gives standing to my client
25 the challenge on behalf of its students.

Argument By Mr. Buikema
Monday/April 19, 2010

14

1 But more importantly --

2 THE COURT: Why, he's not an agent of the
3 university in any way, shape or form?

4 MR. BUIKEMA: But we are an agent of our students
5 whose information has been --

6 THE COURT: But this prohibits the University from 7 doing it. How could you possibly argue that the 8 University is doing it, when they're not?

9 MR. BUIKEMA: I'm not sure I understand Your
10 Honor's question.

11 THE COURT: It says, "It prohibits federal funding
12 of educational institutions who have a policy or 13 practice." You don't contend the education has a
14 policy or practice, do you?

15 MR. BUIKEMA: I do not contend that it has a 16 policy or practice. But Mr. Woodward's actions in 17 disclosing the student information could cause the 18 federal government to terminate funding --

19 THE COURT: How could that be a policy or practice
20 of the University? How would anyone ever believe his 21 conduct is a practice or policy of the University?

22 MR. BUIKEMA: I'd rather not find out, frankly,
23 Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: It's just ridiculous. I don't know
25 why you're arguing that. His conduct can't be

15

1 considered a policy or practice of the University. You
2 said that from the very beginning, it's not. I don't
3 know why you're arguing these claims that have very
4 little, if any, merit.

5 And the problem is you can -- obviously, an
6 attorney can argue alternate theories, but you've got 7 to have some basis for the alternate theory or what 8 happens is, the Court says, "Wow, he's just throwing
9 everything in there so if they're weak, all his claims
10 must be equally weak."

11 And it's just a bad practice, in my judgment, to 12 assert any claim unless you have solid evidence that 13 there's at least some good merit to it and I don't 14 think there's any merit to this claim at all.

15 MR. BUIKEMA: Again, Your Honor, I think my 16 pleadings are confusing in that regard and I'm not 17 intending to argue to this Court that there is an 18 independent clause of action that exist in my client
19 because of FERPA.

20 What I'm arguing is that Mr. Woodward's
21 publication of private student information which would 22 be violative of FERPA is a tortious interference with a
23 third-party expectancy --

24 THE COURT: It's not tortious interference.

25 MR. BUIKEMA: -- because the federal funding

1 consequence of release of that information is
2 potentially damaging to my client and its students.

3 THE COURT: And it's a policy and practice of the 4 University that's to be dealt with, not some person
5 that's acting as you allege he is.

6 Any event, let's go to the next one.

7 MR. BUIKEMA: Go ahead.

8 THE COURT: You've got a defamation claim?

9 MR. BUIKEMA: I do, Your Honor.

10 And if you take any time to peruse Mr. Woodward's
11 website this is a lot more than a gripe site. A lot 12 more than expression of opinions as is given in the 13 evidence before you, specifically the verified
14 complaint and my written pleadings in this regard.

15 He accuses the University of conspiratorial
16 conduct, the defrauding of students, of falsifying
17 students' grades, the connection with criminal
18 activities and the like.

19 THE COURT: Let's take them one at a time, okay.

20 MR. BUIKEMA: Fair enough.

21 THE COURT: Are they listed on page two? Are 22 these the defamation statements or whatever you're 23 calling them?

24 MR. BUIKEMA: That's a summary.

25 THE COURT: You say, "A summary"?

AUA Accused Of Awarding Worthless Degrees

By Observer News - Thursday, May 12th, 2011.

american university of antigua

Former nursing students of the American University of Antigua (AUA) are accusing the institution of cheating them out of valuable time and money and giving them worthless degrees, after the state of New York rejected the qualifications they spent two years working for.

Now, the AUA's President Neal Simon is promising that students will get back the tens of thousands of dollars they paid in tuition fees if the state continues to refuse them the opportunity to work.

These developments have come two months after The Daily OBSERVER and Observer Radio were severely criticised for a series of stories that reported the AUA's School of Nursing was not accredited.

In a report aired on Fox 5 News yesterday, three students spoke about their dreams of working as nurses being crushed because the nursing programme is not approved by the Antigua & Barbuda Nursing Council and is therefore not accredited in New York. So, although they have Associate Degrees, they're unable to get jobs.

"I think it's just important to expose the situation so that no one else could fall prey to this circumstance," Ishmael Jeffers said in the television interview, a sentiment also expressed by another graduate Rosie Velasquez and another former student who left the programme early after spotting the problems.

They said that on entry to the nursing school they were assured, both in the university literature and responses to their direct questions, that once they graduated they would be eligible to sit the National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX). Passing that test would allow them to work in the nursing sector.

However, Velasquez said that after graduating and returning to her New York home, her application to take the exam was denied because, according to the letter she received, the school is not being recognised by the Antigua & Barbuda Nursing Council.

"They lied to me. I was cheated. I went to Antigua, I left my family and I gave them two years out of my life to come back to nothing," she lamented.

Jeffers added: "Everybody's intention was to start a career which we've been robbed of now."

According to the Fox 5 report, since the offshore medical school began its nursing programme in 2009, none of the graduates has been able to take the exam to become a nurse in New York, even though the university said students from Florida have been able to take the exam in that state.

AUA's president acknowledged that the first graduating class ran into problems last year and since then AUA has not accepted another nursing student.

But those who had already completed the programme have been left out of pocket since their degrees are, at this point, just pieces of paper.

To go to the AUA School of Nursing, Velasquez said she had to borrow money, of which she still owes US$47,125.77. Her student loan totaled US$91,331.39.

But the AUA president said if the situation is not rectified, students will get their money back.

"We will reimburse the students the cost of education, which includes their tuition and the housing, etc the plane fare down to Antigua. Yes we will reimburse them," Simon told Fox, although not saying how long he would wait before paying refunds.

He has insisted, though, that even though students got a raw deal, it was not his university's fault.

Although faced with the reality of the graduates' situation, Simon stuck to his previous position that a charter which the AUA received in 2003 specifically stated that the university "was approved and that our graduates are eligible for licensure."

He also produced a letter, signed by Prime Minister Baldwin Spencer, which stated that the government had granted a charter to AUA and its school of nursing and that the programme was fully approved and accredited by the minister of health.

However, that has not been enough for the New York State Education Department, which is currently trying to get to the bottom of the situation, according to the television report.

Back in March, OBSERVER carried a series of stories pointing out that some of the programmes offered by AUA, including nursing, were not accredited. In response to the reports, Executive Director of the Antigua & Barbuda National Accreditation Board Glenford Joseph said his agency had registered the School of Nursing and was in the process of doing so for the School of Medicine, the Veterinary School and the pre-med college.

Follow Us

"The government of Antigua & Barbuda stands by the American University of Antigua, which is registered and licensed by the state of New York," he said at the time.

However, the Nursing Council said in a statement that it had not been involved in the registration process and accused the Accreditation Board of violating its own regulation to consult with various professional disciplines in the decision-making.

The Spencer administration had also issued a statement denouncing the OBSERVER reports.

Threat of Legal Action In AUA Debacle

By Observer News - Saturday, May 14th, 2011.

Article Hits: 17

No Comments

A member of the General Nursing Council is considering taking legal action against a top executive at the American University of Antigua over the AUA School of Nursing debacle.

According to Registrar Laurellyn Williams, the school's president Neil Simon has made untruthful comments about Nurse Elnora Warner, whom he has accused of conflict of interest.

The Council stated yesterday that the statements were crafted to deceive and could be viewed as an "assassination" on Nurse Warner's "integrity and on her personal and professional character."

Nurse Warner is currently in the US state of Florida and will make a decision on

googleimages.com

whether to pursue legal action when she returns here.

The comments by the university president were made after an American media outfit aired a report, in which three former nursing students claimed that their qualifications were rejected by the state of New York because AUA's programme is not approved by the Nursing Council.

In putting forward her position on the issue, the Registrar said, "AUA is totally responsible for the dilemma it finds itself in," because of what she termed as its stance of "superiority."

"AUA is claiming that it received permission to operate its Nursing School through a Charter from the Government as well as from the Minister of Health, which is supposed to assure its accreditation standings, but this is far from reality," Williams said in the statement.

"Yes, institutions can get approval to open/operate schools from Ministers etc, however, when it comes to institutions such as a nursing school which falls under the professional discipline, a school's nursing programme can only be approved by the Professional/Licensure Body, which in this case, is the Nursing Council of Antigua & Barbuda – and this is what AUA has difficulty accepting."

She explained that approval of a nursing programme involves looking at the conditions under which a nurse will be trained; looking at the curriculum of training to include the credit hours as well as the contents to see if it is adequate for one who will eventually be given a licence by the Council (if they desire).

According to the Council, when they approve a nursing training programme, the graduates must be capable of performing safely.

She pointed to the interpretation in one of the sections of the Nurses Registration Act, which specifies that the Council is responsible for approving nursing training programmes.

The Registrar further said, "One of the fiduciary responsibilities of the Council is to protect the public by ensuring safe nursing care delivery, and this begins at the training institution and in this case – schools of nursing. It is for this reason why all Nursing Councils/Boards must approve of nursing training programmes."

Med Student Found Dead

The body of a 27-year-old medical student was found floating at Jabberwock Beach on Sunday. According to the police, Halber Raza-Rizvi, a student of the American University of Antigua (AUA), went missing on Saturday. He was last seen at about 11 am.

The US citizen had been scheduled to return home, but did not show up for his Continental airlines flight.

An official report from the Office of Strategic Communication said a fisherman found the body at about 9 am Sunday.

The beach is located a stone's throw from the university on Jabberwock Drive.

The police said they do not suspect foul play, but are still investigating.

Meanwhile, officers arrested and charged another medical student with possession of cannabis at the airport.

Caribarena.com learned that 22-year-old Nazia Aslam Chaudhry had just completed her studies at AUA and was about to leave the country at about 6 am on Friday.

We were reliably informed that authorities found three packets containing the controlled substance - a little over 5 g - in her possession.

Country defined as 'culturally unethical' place

By OBSERVER News - Monday, May 16th, 2011.

Article Hits: 31
No Comments

Integrity and ethics in Antigua & Barbuda – and not just in public life – came in for close scrutiny recently, with a radio panel comprising three public officials declaring that there is a cultural conundrum.

Speaker of the House D Gisele Isaac-Arrindell, Member of Parliament for City West Gaston Browne, and Ambassador Plenipotentiary Leon Chaku Symister were guests in OBSERVER Radio's Snake Pit last Thursday.

While Browne was speaking in his capacity as the chairman and deputy leader of the Antigua Labour Party (ALP), the other two said they were speaking in their own personas.

The conversation began with Browne noting that his party would push for the strengthening of the administrative and legal framework for the trilogy of integrity legislation, comprising Integrity in Public Life Act, a Prevention of Corruption Act, and a Freedom of Information Act.

EXHIBIT 55

5/16/2011 9:30 AM

"(The ALP will) file a parliamentary resolution to establish a bipartisan parliamentary committee to examine the trilogy of legislation ... and to make recommendations to facilitate their effective operationalisation and functionality," Browne said.

But as he made his case, admitting that "corruption exists – in fact it existed in past administrations and it exists today in the UPP (United Progressive Party) administration," Isaac-Arrindell was adamant that the problem is more pervasive.

"Antigua is a small country made even smaller by the fact that our indigenous population is 50-little bit per cent, and I have seen corruption up close and I have reported corruption," a passionate Isaac-Arrindell said.

"And you know what we say – the persons to whom the corruption is reported? 'Well, it's a small society and you don't want to embarrass the family ...' and that is what is keeping us from being a real society that has principles and ethics," she added.

The Speaker of House argued that "what is the norm for a society is what becomes ethical," and said the country is inured to corruption because of the acceptance of local adages like where the horse ties it feeds.

She also called the citizenry hypocrites who "want a kind of behaviour from politicians that society does not practice."

Though initially resisting the notion of the island being a culturally unethical place, Browne and Symister eventually agreed, with examples of their own.

Murder, Sexual Offences Top Police Stats

By Carol Williams Thursday, December 31st 2008

Sexual offences and murders have, for yet another year, emerged as major problems for the Royal Police Force of Antigua & Barbuda, according to crime statistics released yesterday.

The figures indicate that sexual offences have increased 127 per cent from the 44 recorded last year, while there were 16 murders, two more than occurred in 2008.

Incidents of rape have more than quadrupled from the figures recorded in 2007, the year the Sexual Offences Unit was formed. Thirty-three cases were recorded this year with 10 arrests compared to the 23 reported in 2008 of which there were five arrests.

Statutory rape or rape of minors more than doubled from the 12 reported last year to 33.

Twenty-two arrests were made this year compared to last year's 12.

Attempted rape cases spiked to 11 from the previous two.

There were slight increases in serious indecency and indecent assault, aiding and abetting in connection with sexual offences, buggery and incest.

Police Officer Guilty

By Martina Johnson - Thursday, July 8th, 2010

For the second time in less than a year another member of the Royal Police Force of Antigua & Barbuda faces jail time for a crime against a civilian.

Assistant Superintendent of Police (ASP) Everton Francis was, yesterday declared guilty of wounding a Jamaican man and remanded to Her Majesty's Prison.

The 12-member jury, comprising four men and eight women, after five hours of deliberation, handed down the verdict of wounding.

Francis escaped the greater charge of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm, but was found guilty of the second count, wounding, which carries a maximum of five years in prison, a fine and or compensation.

The senior officer, who has been a member of the Royal Police Force of Antigua & Barbuda for 34 years, was on trial this week for wounding Damien Watson.

The officer will remain in prison until July 23 while a Social Inquiry Report is prepared by the Probation Department to present to the court as part of the rules of sentencing.

Unlike nine months ago when his colleague Kevil Nelson was convicted and sentenced on a murder charge, <http://www.antiguaobserver.com/>

Antigua and Barbuda is a multiparty, parliamentary democracy with a population of approximately 83,000. In the 2004 parliamentary elections, which observers described as generally free and fair, the United Progressive Party (UPP) defeated the ruling Antigua Labour Party (ALP), and Baldwin Spencer became prime minister. The civilian authorities generally maintained effective control of the security forces.

While the government generally respected the human rights of its citizens, there were problems in a few areas, including excessive use of force by police, poor prison conditions, violation of press freedoms, societal discrimination and violence against women, and sexual abuse of children.

RESPECT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

Section 1 Respect for the Integrity of the Person, Including Freedom From:

- Arbitrary or Unlawful Deprivation of Life
There were no reports that the government or its agents committed arbitrary or unlawful killings.
- Disappearance
There were no reports of politically motivated disappearances.
- Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman, or Degrading Treatment or Punishment
The constitution specifically prohibits such practices, and the authorities generally respected these prohibitions in practice. Nonetheless, there were occasional reports of police brutality, corruption, excessive force, discrimination

CDNN :: Tourist Murders, Robberies Threaten Antigua's Tourism Industry - Mozilla Firefox

by CARMEN SANCHEZ @ CDNN - CYBER DIVER News Network

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (21 Feb 2009) — Known among yachters as "death island", Antigua is struggling to prop up its collapsing tourism industry as local gang members kill and rob tourists in broad daylight.

Local tourism officials criticized police for failing to provide adequate security after gangs went on a one-day robbery spree day before yesterday that victimized tourists from four cruise ships including the Caribbean Princess, Azamar, Costa Atlantica and Thompson Destiny.

Two weeks ago, two tourists were assaulted and robbed at Redcliffe Quay, a popular shopping area for holiday visitors.

In January, two tourists were robbed at Fort James Beach.

Death Island

Also in January, Australian yacht skipper, Drew Gollan, 38, was gunned down and killed near a police station at English Harbour while trying to protect his wife, who was also shot, and their baby daughter.

Following Gollan's murder, yacht owners left the island in droves.

In July last year, British newlyweds Ben and Catherine Mullany were brutally tortured and murdered in their room at the Cocos Bay Resort in Antigua.

Private yacht skipper Drew Gollan (above) was murdered in Antigua last month. Newlyweds Ben and Catherine Mullany (below) were murdered in Antigua last July.

Star Clippers announced today that is dropping calls in Antigua in the wake of last week's murder of one of its passengers on the island.

The sailing ship line says it will substitute the Caribbean island of Nevis on upcoming itineraries of the 227-passenger Royal Clipper. The ship normally calls in Antigua every two weeks.

"Star Clippers has called at Antigua for many years without incident, and with its long sailing and yacht history, the island has always been a popular destination with our guests," Star Clippers CEO Mikael Kraft said in a statement. "We are taking this decision after much deliberation, and we will continue to monitor the security situation in Antigua and evaluate our options for next winter season regarding returning to the island."

Cruise Passengers Attacked & Robbed in Antigua While Cruise and Tourism Officials Meet

Posted on February 3, 2010 by Jim Walker

The Antigua Sun reports that two cruise passengers were attacked and robbed while ashore in Antigua yesterday after getting off a cruise ship.

The passengers were not identified but were described as a "British couple" who arrived in St. Johns yesterday. They are sailing aboard the Fred Olsen cruise ship, Boudicca.

The newspaper reports that the "dating daylight incident" occurred around 10:45 a.m. while the tourists were walking along Bay Street in the "Villa area" which is to the north of the St. Johns Harbour where the passengers disembarked. Three young men attacked the couple with "a piece of stick" and robbed them of a digital camera before fleeing. The couple was treated at the Mount St. John Medical Centre and then returned to the Boudicca.

Antigua's tourism officials already have their hands full following the highly publicized murder of Nina Elizabeth Nilsson who was killed in Antigua after disembarking from Star Clippers' Royal Clipper cruise ship. This latest crime against a cruise tourist occurred while the executive members of the Florida Caribbean Cruise Association (FCCA) were meeting with the Cabinet of Antigua and Barbuda and the local Cruise Tourism Association regarding cruise ships porting in Antigua. Last month there were three gun-related murders and on Sunday another two people were shot but not fatally injured.

Around 33,000 British holiday-makers visit the island each year and tourism comprises 75 per cent of the economy.

The last year has been a big push for luxury and eco-friendly tourism but growing awareness of the crime problem will be a significant blow to the island's main industry.

The Foreign Office recently updated its advice for travellers, saying: "There has been a recent increase in robberies of tourists in Antigua. Do not carry large amounts of cash or jewellery."

"Valuables and travel documents should be left where possible. In safety deposit boxes and hotel safes."

The internet travel site tripadvisor.com also warns that the greatest danger to tourists is pickpockets.

According to local newspaper the Antigua Sun crime is "hurling recklessly out of control" and is a "terrible menace that has been terrorising our nation for much too long now."

A post-mortem examination was carried out last Friday on the body of murdered US tourist Nina Elizabeth Nilssen whose body was discovered exactly one week ago at Winward Bay, close to Pigeon Point.

The autopsy was conducted by Dr. Petra Miller-Nanton who issued a death certificate stating the cause of death was due to Haemorrhaging as a result of a stab wound.

Meanwhile, family members are now finalising arrangements to return Nilssen's body to her home in the Bay Area of San Francisco.

There has been no progress in the search for the killer. The police, who issued a description of the man they are looking for, are pleading for information from members of the public that could lead to an arrest.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported that friends of the dead woman gathered Sunday in a state of shock to remember her.

The 29-year-old San Francisco State University graduate student had arrived in Antigua aboard the Royal Clipper. The family was celebrating the marriage of Nilssen's 32 year-old sister.

On route to St. Kitts, the vessel docked in Antigua, and the family disembarked for a barbecue at Winward Bay. That was the last time they saw Nina alive. Her body was discovered just before nightfall last Tuesday.

Nilssen was described as a fearless traveller, whose adventures included trekking in

The killing of a doctor on her honeymoon in Antigua leaves family, friends and colleagues devastated.

A newly married British doctor has been killed and her husband critically injured after they were shot in their Caribbean honeymoon hotel cottage.

Catherine Mullany, 31, died on Antigua and her husband, Ben, also 31, is fighting for his life after what police are treating as a robbery attempt.

Their families said they were "deeply shocked and devastated".

The couple, from Pontardawe, south Wales, were attacked on Sunday, the last day of their two-week honeymoon.

Visitors in a neighbouring cottage at Cocos Hotel heard shots at around 0500 Antigua time, and raised the alarm.

Officers are treating the incident as a robbery which went wrong. It is believed that someone entered their cottage while the couple were asleep.

Cuban doctor is third murder victim for the year

By Martina Johnson - Wednesday, February 17th, 2010

A small group of Cubans stood shell shocked on a sidewalk on All Saints Road Tuesday night as police officers conducted investigations into the homicide of their compatriot, a 39-year-old doctor whose name the police asked the media to withhold since the next of kin had not been notified.

A neighbour, who reported hearing sounds of a struggle and screams for help, rushed to the upstairs apartment just west of Townhouse Mega Store where she found the district doctor dead. This happened at around 9:30 pm, although Dr Cecil Philip, who would officially pronounce the man dead, arrived at around midnight.

Officers on the scene said the deceased was face up in his living room, which was splattered with blood, on the floor and on the sofa. Reports indicate that there were signs of struggle and there appeared to be a wound to the back of the man's head. At the time of posting it was unclear if there were any other injuries.

A Cuban nurse, a friend of the deceased, told the OBSERVER that she left the man's apartment at around 9:05 pm and got a call from another friend about an apparent incident. She said she returned at about 9:50 pm to find that her friend had been killed.

As the clock approached midnight, the Cubans remained rooted to their spot on the sidewalk as police officers probed the scene and media workers sought to overcome the language barrier to conduct interviews. Save for the three groups, there was no one else around, no shouts of anguish or tears, just obviously shocked friends communicating in their native tongue.

One woman, who lives in the building where the killing took place, fearing for her and her family's safety, packed a suitcase and sought refuge with friends in a nearby apartment building.

Senior Sergeant William Holder made an immediate request for the public's help in solving the third homicide for the year. He urged anyone with information to call the Criminal Investigations Department (CID) at 462-3913 or 462-3914 or the nearest police station. (With reports from Martina Johnson who was on the scene)

Teenage mother to serve two years for infanticide

By Martina Johnson - Saturday, June 12th, 2010

The young mother who waived a murder trial by pleading guilty to manslaughter in the stabbing death of her 22-month-old son, would have been spending the next four years in prison had she not admitted guilt nor spent time on remand at Her Majesty's Prison.

The 19-year-old, who was 16 at the time of the October 7, 2007 incident, was sentenced to four years in jail, with a one-third reduction for her plea and a further reduction for time spent on remand.

Consequently, the teen, whose name cannot be released because she was a minor at the time the crime was committed, will spend just about 24 months behind bars.

Despite a psychiatric evaluation which showed that the mother was diagnosed as being unstable since she was 13, and in need of continued therapy, and a lengthy, passionate and emotive plea from the accused and her lawyer Steadroy "Cutie" Benjamin, High Court Judge Errol Thomas said he needed to "strike and balance and deter other persons from committing such a horrendous act."

In a 30-second address to the court, the teen cried and begged for mercy and apologised for killing the younger of her two sons, Daquan Harris.

With the prosecution relying solely on circumstantial evidence to support its case, the judge posited, "One has to wonder what happened that brought a mother's wrath upon her child" to an extent it would bring about the demise of "poor, young Daquan who had no resistance, no defence. He was like a lamb..."

The judge described the case as "a very special one" but added that the court must consider the aggravating factors.

Among the aggravating factors were that a knife was used, the child sustained two stab wounds, the age of the child and the fact that the mother gave two conflicting statements to police which further differed from the explanation she gave to investigators on the morning of the tragedy.

Harris died as a result of acute cardiac failure and massive haemorrhaging relative to the two stab wounds to the chest.

The psychiatrist, who recently began administering treatment to the convicted woman, told the court that the teen had been evaluated by another counsellor when she was 13 years old, during her first pregnancy.

The doctor said the findings of that evaluation were that the convict was not ready for motherhood as she was unstable. She was in a very controlling relationship; had been abused by relatives (relationship between convict and those relatives withheld); and she showed symptoms of Oppositional Defiant Disorder

Reports that there might be another dead baby on Monday sent Police investigators back to the property where a grim discovery of the body of an infant in an outside pit latrine was made on Sunday.

Reports indicate an anonymous caller tipped off lawmen Monday morning that another baby might be concealed in the area.

Further details on that report were unavailable at press time. However, police sources say they had not made any further discoveries with regard to the latest tip.

Up to press time, the 23-year-old woman who allegedly delivered the foetus, believed to have been eight months along in term at the time of birth, was still in police custody assisting with the investigation.

According to residents in the area, the young woman was noticeably pregnant in recent time. However, on Sunday, police received a call that the body of a baby had been placed in a black plastic bag and dumped in a latrine at the back of the yard.

When investigators retrieved the bag at around 2 pm, in it, was the partially decomposed body of the infant.

Reports indicate that the police have also turned to the woman's partner for answers as they continue their investigations.

Meantime, a coroner's inquest was done yesterday morning and the date for an autopsy is to be scheduled.
